

The Spirit of Lincoln Visits Washington

Yesterday was the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, and there came to the Capital city a figure once familiar. He was a tall, kindly faced man, clothed in the garments of over half a century ago. For a while, he seated himself upon the steps of a great memorial, where children gathered about him. And he told them a story of the long ago.

Again, he paused for an instant, glancing through the columns of the memorial toward the historic Potomac, then turning eastward to the great shaft and the glistening dome in the distance.

Photos by International Film Service.

The spirit of the great emancipator ends its pilgrimage at the house where Lincoln died. Character portrayal by Dennis Connell of the Arts Club Players. Photographs at memorial by special permission of Lincoln Memorial Commission.

Prince and Princess Bibesco of Rumania, recent arrivals in Washington, the prince to become minister of his country. He is a grandson of the late reigning crown prince, and the princess was Miss Elizabeth Asquith, daughter of the Right Hon. Herbert H. Asquith.

National Photo Co.

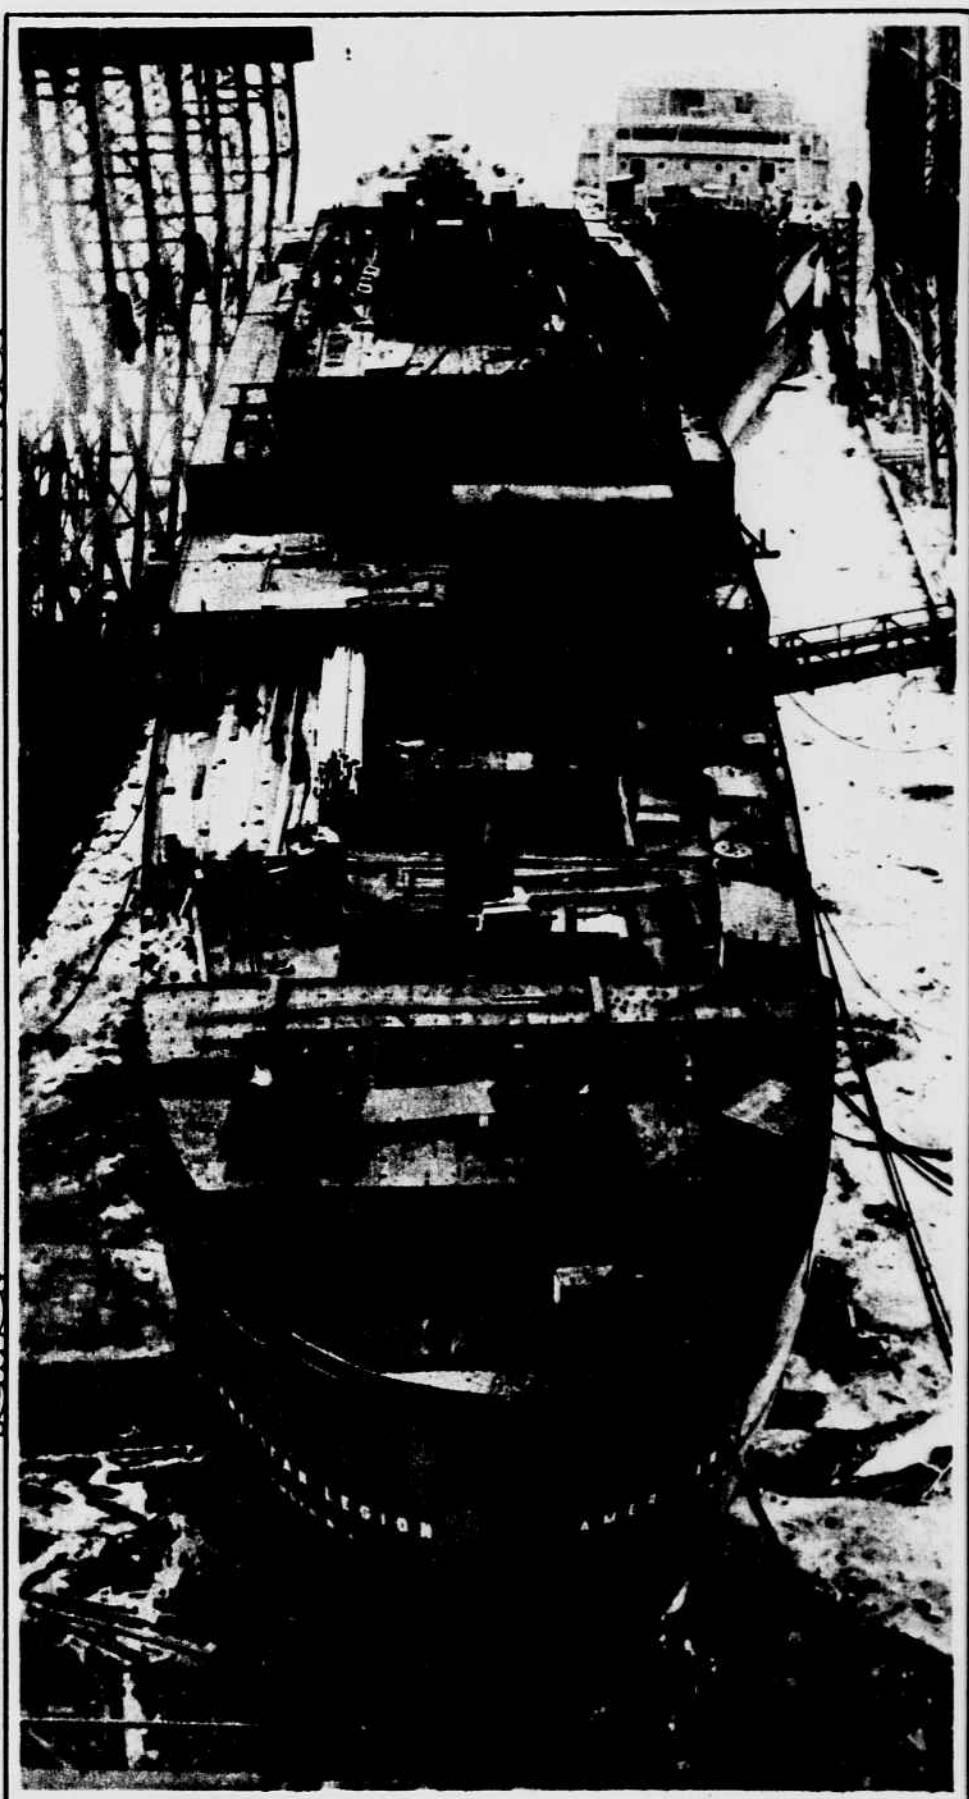

Left to right: Representative Britten of Illinois, member of House naval affairs committee; Admiral Sims, Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske and Lieut. Commander Edwards leaving the Capitol after testifying on the naval program.

National Photo Co.

In County Cork, Ireland, scene of recent ambush. Soldier scouts on outskirts of village keep a sharp outlook for attack.

Keystone View Co.

S. S. American Legion, named for our victorious fighting men, now under construction at Camden, N. J., plant. The vessel, when completed, will enter the passenger service between New York and South American ports.

W. D. World Photo.